International Business Transactions, Law 754,

Picker

This class will meet in condensed form. Instead of 14 weeks of class, this class will meet for 7 weeks, with each class session being twice the usual length (with appropriate breaks provided). Such an arrangement will allow employment of group discussions, simulations, paper presentations, and allow for lengthy periods for research and writing of the required class paper.

The class will meet during the weeks of:

February 6th through February 24th

March 20th through April 7th

Additionally, there will be one guest lecturer class and one video-conference class to be arranged sometime during the regularly scheduled class time during the weeks of February 27th to March 3rd and March 13th to March 17th

100% Class Paper due April 24th. Additionally, student grades may be raised or reduced by one letter grade for exceptionally good or poor class performance.

International Business Transactions covers the domestic and international law applicable to private entities, corporations and individuals, who are engaged in international or transnational business. The course will cover material from the formation of international transactions to the regulation of those transactions, and finally to the resolution of disputes arising from the transactions. The course will touch on international antitrust/competition, international trade, sanctions, intellectual property, licensing, franchising, exchange controls, foreign investments, corrupt practices, international arbitration, international litigation and other international laws relevant to business overseas.

This course is essential for those students intending to counsel clients, in Kansas City or elsewhere, involved in international or transnational business or for those students intending on going into an international business for themselves at some point. Additionally, this course is highly relevant for students with interests in other international law fields, such as environment or human rights, as without an understanding of how business operates internationally, it is very hard to understand how to regulate business to assist in other international goals.
