RELEVANCY OF COURSE FOR CAREER PURPOSES:
A knowledge of Missouri Civil Procedure is obviously helpful for anyone who intends to practice in Missouri. In addition, the course will (a) give students the opportunity to study a procedural system that is, in several respects, quite different than the federal system and evaluate how those differences would effect their tactical choices, (b) provide experience in close reading of statutes and rules as well as the cases interpreting those texts, and (c) reinforce students' understanding of federal civil procedure.

RELEVANCY OF COURSE FOR BAR EXAMINATION PREPARATION:
As far as anyone can remember, every Missouri Bar Exam has included a Missouri Civil Procedure question.

SUMMARY DESCRIPTION OF COURSE:
Each year, this course will cover several selected aspects in which Missouri procedural law significantly differs from federal civil procedure. The class will study those topics in depth through the analysis of the relevant rules or statutes, case law interpreting those texts, and problems requiring the students to apply their learning. Topics will vary from year to year but may include venue and personal jurisdiction, pleading and motion practice, joinder of parties and claims, statutes of limitation, trial procedure, post-trial motions & appellate procedure, discovery, and preclusion. In 2007, the first topics to be covered will probably be the constitutional authority for enactment of the Missouri rules, venue, and appellate procedure. I am not certain what further topics we will cover in 2007.

In addition to this focused study, students will be given some time to simply "muck around in the data" by reading advance sheets as a way of identifying topics of interest that they may want to explore individually or as a group.

Near the end of the course, there may be a brief overview of several topics that have not previously been covered in depth.
